DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to the request for reconsideration filed 6 October 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 11,12 and 14-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Applicant's Prior Art (Figures 1 and 4) in view of Huang (U.S. Patent 5,961,912) and Freyman et al. (U.S. Patent 5,635,671).

Applicant's Prior Art discloses an electronic circuit package (Figs. 1 and 4) that contains a substrate (10) having a first surface and a second surface, wherein the first surface has a gating area, conductive traces (18) on first surface of substrate in the gating area, an electronic device (integrated circuit) (12) attached to first surface of substrate, electrical connections (wire bond) (16) between electronic device and conductive traces, input/output connections (ball grid array) (24) formed on second surface of the substrate, electrical connections (22) between conductive traces and input/output connections, encapsulation (14) formed over part of the substrate and the electronic device as an encapsulating mold compound and a encapsulating material (33) forming a mold runner. Applicant's Prior Art discloses all of the limitations except a barrier material attached to the gating area of the substrate. Whereas Huang discloses an electronic device (Fig. 5) that contains a substrate (320) with a barrier material such as polyimide tape or high temperature plastic formed on the substrate. (Column 3, lines 45-47) The barrier material is added to stop warpage during encapsulant injection process. (Column 3, lines 37-38) Since Applicant's Prior Art and Huang are both from the same field of endeavor, electronic devices, the purpose disclosed by Huang would have been recognized in the pertinent art of Applicant's Prior Art. Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention as made to modify the electronic device of Applicant's Prior Art by incorporating a barrier material on the substrate to prevent warping during the encapsulation injection process as taught by Huang. Applicant's Prior Art and Huang disclose all the limitations except for conductive traces formed in grating area. Whereas Freyman discloses an electronic device (Fig. 9) that contains a grating area (902) with a gold region (conductive trace) to achieve top gating to degate without damaging the device. (Abstract) Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the devices of the Applicant's Prior Art and Huang to add conductive traces to the gating area to degate without damaging the device as taught by Freyman.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6 October 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's argues that the Freyman reference does not disclose conductive traces in the gating region that is erroneous as can be seen in Fig. 9 that the conductive traces are formed in the gating region (902) and are made of gold and as stated in the abstract and after the removal of some of the gating region the gold conductive traces are still part of the structure. Therefore the rejection stands.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
